Herrmann, Kettler win TV POY titles

Doug Herrmann of WJW-TV and Chris Kettler of WBNS-TV walked away with top television honors in ONPA's annual contest despite a strong challenge to both by WJW's David Bradford.

Herrmann won the ONPA Television News Photographer of the Year title, edging Bradford by one point. Kettler was the Quarterly Clip Contest Photographer of the Year, winning by five points over Bradford.

Doug Herrmann

The POY title won by Herrmann is his first. He's hoping his first Emmy will come this year as well after being nominated seven years in a row.

Herrmann got his start in journalism working for the Armed Forces Network after enlisting in the Navy. Two subs, 14 ships and 23 countries later, Herrmann landed at the Ohio News Network in Columbus in 1997 after his honorable discharge from the Navy.

After two years in Columbus, Herrmann moved to Cleveland when ONN decided to open a bureau there. Four months later, he accepted a position at WJW.

It was there he met his wife-to-be, assignment editor Marlo Diliberto who Herrmann describes as "the greatest woman ever". Although no longer at WJW, she still holds the assigning duties in Herrmann's life, he said.

Herrmann also received national recognition for his work in 2005, placing first in NPPA's Best of Television News Photography contest. Herrmann claimed the top prize in the Editors Feature for Photographers in TV News Editing for the story "Bella Faccia."

Chris Kettler of WBNS won his first POY title at WTOL-TV in Toledo two years after graduating from Bowling Green State University. Fifteen years later, Kettler is once again on top, this time as the ONPA Clip Photographer of the Year.

It was Kettler's intention to be a reporter when he graduated from BG in spite of having taken a photojournalism class under Jim Gordon there. The broadcast journalism major got his first job out of school as a photographer/fill-in reporter at WNWO-TV in Toledo.

After about a year at WNWO, Kettler was offered a job at WTOL as a full-time photographer. The extra $4,000 a year was enough to make him give up reporting and focus on photography.

It was there under chief photographer Paul Kwapich that Kettler said he learned the basic of good television photography. Having Kwapich as a mentor couldn't have hurt. Kwapich has won three ONPA POY titles himself. In 1989, that title went to Kettler though.

Soon after Kettler took a job at WKRN-TV in Nashville, Tenn. A year later, shortly after getting married, Kettler moved to Columbus working at WBNS, where he has been for the past 15 years.

Since 1996, Kettler has been primarily the photographer for the investigative unit at WBNS. He works with two reporters and a researcher in the unit known as 10Investigates.

"It is really gratifying to win the Clip POY since nearly all of my entries were in the In-Depth category," said Kettler. "The judges really seemed to take into account the conditions under which I was shooting. Not every story was full of pretty pictures...a couple of them involved shaky, grainy surveillance video that was shot from moving vehicles. Sometimes the value of what I shoot isn't about composition or nat sound, but it's about catching my subject in a compromising moment."

Kettler has been married to his wife Amy for fifteen years and has two sons, Alec, 11, and Zach, 7. Outside work Kettler is heavily involved in youth athletics. He's a director on the board of Worthington Youth Boosters, coaches soccer, baseball and football and is a commissioner for a soccer and baseball league.

The award for Station of the Year went to WBNS-TV in Columbus. The station has won the top spot four of the past five years and placed second in 2003 when WJW won the award.

ONPA members take home national honors

Award season is upon us and several ONPA members have been among those receiving recognition on the state and national level. Those that we have been made aware of include:

NPPA Best of Photojournalism

ONPA members Lisa Dutton of The Blade, Jeff Hinkley of The Columbus Dispatch and Eustacio Humphrey of The Plain Dealer were winners in NPPA's Best of Photojournalism 2005.

Dutton won third place in Sports Action for "Hold Your Horses". Hinkley received honorable mention in the Conceptual Illustration category for his photograph of crossword puzzle enthusiast Michael Torch.

Humphrey's story Eye on the Nation received Special Recognition for the Cliff Edom's New America Award.

Jim Gehrz of the Minneapolis Star Tribune won the Newspaper Photographer of the Year title.

POY Awards

The Plain Dealer won several awards in the 62nd Annual Pictures of the Year International (POYi) Competition, sponsored by the Missouri School of Journalism. The Cleveland newspaper won third place for Best Use of Photography and received two Awards of Excellence in the Editing Division. One for Newspaper Multiple Page Feature Story and another for Newspaper Series.

Michael Macor of the San Francisco Chronicle was named Photographer of the Year in the contest.

National Headliners

Andrea Levy of The Plain Dealer won first place for newspapers/magazines illustrative graphics in the National Headliner Awards

Founded in 1934 by the Press Club of Atlantic City, the program is one of the oldest and largest annual contests recognizing journalistic merit in the communications industry.

Associated Press Sports Editors

Associated Press photographer Tony Dejak in Cleveland won an honorable mention in the Associated Press Sports Editors contest for AP staff. Dejak was honored in the feature category.

AP national enterprise photographer Amy Sancetta, who is based in the Cleveland area, won in the action category for her photo of New York Yankees star Alex Rodriguez chopping the ball loose from Boston pitcher Bronson Arroyo in a disputed play in Game 6 of the American League championship series.

THE BLADE/Lisa Dutton

Marie Myers of Notre Dame Academy is thrown from her horse during a high school equestrian event. After a quick check from paramedics she was back in the saddle to finish her event.

Odds 'n ends

After an eight year stint at The Washington Post, Nate Parsons has returned to Ohio as the Director of Photography at The Toledo Blade.

The Ohio Associated Press recently began awarding two $100 Photo of the Month prizes for the state's best news and feature photo. June winners were Allan Detrich of the Blade and Bill Lackey of the Springfield News-Sun.

Marshall Gorby of the Springfield News-Sun is atop the standings in the NPPA Region 4 Monthly Czip Contest after four months. Gus Chan of The Plain Dealer is in 5th place and Bill Lackey of The Springfield News-Sun is in 7th.

Former ONPA member and long time Clip Chairman Steve Stokes was among the judges picking the winners in the March ONPA Clip Contest.

Stokes says, "One of these years I am going to make an attempt to come back for one of the conventions before too many of us are in wheelchairs."

Plain Dealer on PDN's Best List

It won't come as a surprise to those working in Ohio, but The Plain Dealer recently found itself on a list of best newspapers for photography and photojournalists compiled by Photo District News. The magazine compiled the list asking photographers, photo editors and educators for input while putting together a story on the state of newspaper photography and design.

Newspapers on the list: Albuquerque Tribune, Concord Monitor, Evansville Courier & Press, Hartford Courant, Jasper Herald, Los Angeles Times, The Naples

Daily News, The New York Times, The Palm Beach Post, The Rocky Mountain News, State Journal-Register (Springfield, Illinois), Washington Post.

Two newspapers, The Plain Dealer and Memphis Commercial Appeal, were named as Newspapers to Watch because of recent strides they've made to improve their photo reports. Both have new management teams with a commitment to good photography, and have shown potential to become hot papers for photographers.

Carson Award presented to life member Ron Kuntz

Another convention come and gone. It was all about family. It wasn't planned that way but the events of the weekend had family woven throughout from with a nice bow put on the package at Saturday evening's awards banquet.

The high point of the evening was ONPA life member Ron Kuntz presented the Robert S. Carson award by his son John, staff photographer at The Plain Dealer who was the 2004 ONPA Still Photographer of the Year. The Carson award, given for outstanding contribution to photojournalism, is considered ONPA's highest honor.

In this case, the award is long overdue, but getting the elder Kuntz to an awards banquet is not an easy task, as John tells it. Seems his father already had plans for the weekend with the Bill Glass Weekend of Champions prison ministry.

Those plans didn't sit well at home when Ron's wife Nancy was told of the honor ONPA was planning for her husband. She told her husband that if he couldn't be there the night their son was accepting his Photographer of the Year Award, he might as well just stay at that prison.

Needless to say, the proud father, armed with his camera to capture the moment, was there to watch his son accept his honor. It was but a few minutes later when the tables were turned on a very surprised Ron Kuntz.

His career spans most every type of camera used by photojournalists. The equipment changed, the pictures never did. He continues to produce award winning work.

Computers seem to be the only thing to slow him down. Son John is one of many who has helped him out when things weren't quite working right. Most are only all too glad to help. They are simply returning a favor, because Ron has always been there for others.

The awards banquet served as a stark contrast to remarks by the day's first speaker, Stormi Greener of the Minneapolis Star Tribune. She talked about the dark side of photojournalism and the delicate balance of the job and family. The balance was gone in Greener's career. Work always seem to come first.

If there was any doubt about that, she shared an exchange with her teenage daughter that drove home the point. Her daughter said perhaps her mother would find time for her if she were starving in some far off land, after all, she was always there for those people.

The pendulum swings both ways though and anyone who attended the awards banquet got to see the other side of the spectrum when Kim Riesbeck of This Week Newspapers got up to accept her award.

In the back of the room, her husband Chris Salvadore brought in their two children Addie and Ian armed with signs congratulating mom for her first win in the year-end contest. Now a full-time mom and part-time photographer it, seems that she excels at both. Now that's balance.

As always, these programs don't come to fruition without a great deal of hard work. This year, the group of volunteers was led by convention chairman Craig Holman of The Columbus Dispatch. He was assisted by Tim Moushey of WBNS-TV, Joy Parker, Jonathan Quilter and Chris Parker of This Week Newspapers, Gary Gardiner and a host of others.

Special thanks to The Columbus Dispatch for hosting a very successful program Friday night, coordinated by Doral Chenoweth III, that was very well attended. Karl Kuntz's Photoshop presentation got the weekend off to a great start.

Its always good to hear from one of our own members, and Associated Press photographer Amy Sancetta didn't disappoint. A little luck never hurt anyone, but she reminded us that a little homework and preparation will usually put you in a place where good things will happen for you shooting sports. I know one thing for sure, she studies hard.

The event will return to Columbus next year, April 7-8 at the same facility, with a new committee format. More on that as well as minutes from the business meeting and a report from the treasurer in the next issue of the newsletter.

STILL CLIP RULES

Photos must be entered in the month published. A photo can be entered only after its initial publication. Publication is defined as printed or electronically reproduced by your publication's official Web site.

All Web published entries must be in the form of a hard copy no larger than 8 by 10 inches, with a screen shoot of the picture's online publication on the back.

Submissions of wire photos will be handled similarly. If a clip of your AP submission is not available a print no larger than 8 by 10 inches may be entered. Attached must be a proof from your AP server of the photo or the routing code and date of transmission.

Remove your name and affiliation from the front of the clip. Affix a completed official entry label on the back. Include a separate sheet of paper with your name, address and total number of clips entered.

Layouts are judged as a single entry but single pictures from a layout can be entered also. You must submit another clip of the single image from the layout in this case.

Sort clips by category:

Spot news: A picture of an unscheduled event for which no advanced planning was possible. Examples: fires, accidents and natural disasters.

General news: A picture of a scheduled political, social or cultural event for which advance planning was possible. An assigned and/or scheduled news event. Example: Demonstrations, funerals, trials and promotional events.

Portrait: A picture of a person that reveals the essence of the subject's character.

Sports: An unposed sports-related picture, either feature or action. Sports-related portraits should be entered in the portrait category.

Multiple pictures: A photo story, sequence or series of any subject matter.

Illustration: A created picture, not a found situation or portrait. Intended to clarify or dramatize a preconceived idea. This would include illustrations depicting food, fashion, industrial or editorial topics. This category will be judged quarterly but clips must be entered in the month published.

Each entrant is limited to a total of nine clips per month. The clip contest is open to all ONPA members in good standing who live or work in Ohio during the month entered. The ONPA clip contest is not affiliated with the NPPA Region 4 clip contest. Clips must be in the hand of the clip chairman by the 7th of the month following publication. Clips should be sent to

SUBMITTING WINNING CLIPS

All winners in the monthly clip contest must submit a copy of the winning entry for the ONPA newsletter and/or web site. Winners will be notified via e-mail, so remember to include your e-mail address on the back of each clip. If you do not respond to the first notification in seven days a second notice will be sent. Failure to respond to the second notice in ten days will result in a loss of points for that clip win. If in subsequent months the same photographer fails to reply he or she will be disqualified from entering the contest for the remainder of the year.

First place winners should be 10 inches widest measurement @ 200 dpi. 2nd, 3rd, HM: winners should be 7 inches widest measure @ 72 dpi. Files should be slugged accordingly: month_category_place.jpg Example: May_genews_1st.jpg
